

Project Proposal

Sullivan Lucas Myer

I plan to create a website to host both a blog, and a collection of my projects. The homepage will contain a list of projects which can be clicked on to access the Github repository housing the project. The top of the homepage will contain a button that takes the user to the blog page, which will be a list, similar to the one on the homepage, but of blog posts rather than projects. When clicked, the blog posts will take the user to a new page containing that specific blog post, and a form giving the user the opportunity to rate the blog post.